Kyushu University, Ohashi Campus (Japan), Kyushu University Hospital (Japan)	The final report of this year's project was held. In collaboration with Department of Neurology, the students proposed prototypes such as shoes, canes, and apps, designed to address the walking challenges faced by patients with Parkinson's disease. By conducting field tests with actual patients, the students were able to develop realistic and refined prototypes. We received valuable feedback from medical staff and researchers, from neurology, rehabilitation, and medical facilities.
